

About the Delinquency Prevention Network

The Delinquency Prevention Network (DPN) is a collaborative group of agencies that provide prevention services to youth in Alameda County who are system-involved, or at risk of becoming system-involved. Common reasons for referral include habitual truancy, running away from home, trouble with law enforcement, engaging in high-risk behaviors, and being beyond parental control.

Services and programs DPN Agencies can provide include:

- Case Management
- Civic and Social Engagement
- Counseling
- Crisis Intervention
- Diversion
- Life Skills
- Mentoring
- Restorative Justice
- Truancy Mediation

Youth are referred by a variety of Alameda County sources, including, but not limited to the following:

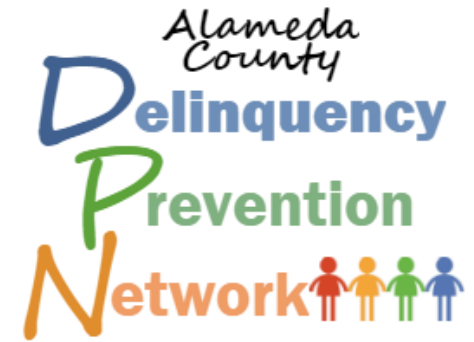

- Parents or youth themselves
- Teachers and other school staff
- Probation Department
- District Attorney
- Public Defender
- Court and Law Enforcement agencies
