COUNSELING AND CRISIS INTERVENTION

Individual and Family Therapeutic Counseling and Crisis Intervention by DPN Youth Service Centers

Probation funds either 3 or 5 sessions of counseling at no cost to the client. The amount of sessions is determined by a client's Medi-Cal eligibility and a diagnosis that meets Early Periodic Screening Diagnosis and Treatment (EPSDT) criteria. The DPN agencies' licensed clinicians utilize trauma-informed treatment techniques that combine family crisis interventions with short-term family counseling. Using the identified risk factors (provided in the DPN Referral Form), they assist families in dealing with underlying problems that led to the crisis.

DIVERSION

Services and programs specifically structured to prevent formal entry into the juvenile justice system. Programs are encouraged to develop strategic partnerships in an effort to better meet the intervention and treatment needs of youth. Programs are responsible for building relationships with school districts to develop site-specific alternatives to suspension programming.

Centerforce Youth Court (DPN)

- Youth Court is for first-time juvenile offenders who would otherwise be referred for prosecution to the District Attorney. They will be given the option and opportunity to have case management with their parent(s), their case handled by peers in a court-like setting, and adjudicated (including a penalty imposed, e.g., community service and a CYC-based class such as Anger Management). Centerforce provides educational alternatives in lieu of criminal sentences.
- In tandem with the first-time offender, Centerforce recruits Alameda County youth interested in volunteering to learn about the judicial process and to serve as CYC attorneys (both prosecution and defense), as well as jurors and bailiffs.
- Using the YLS/CMI, Contractor's case manager will develop a treatment plan to address individual criminogenic needs.
